

The Story of Al-Quran God's Final Revelation

Muslims believe Al-Quran to be God's final revelation. We believe it is the literal word of God, revealed over many years, to His final prophet, Muhammad (PBUH), may God praise him. The Quran is full of wisdom. It is full of the wonder and glory of God, and a testament to His mercy and justice. It is not a history book, a story-book, or a scientific textbook, although it contains all of those genres. Al-Quran is God's greatest gift to humanity – it is a book like no other. In the second verse of the second chapter of Al-Quran, God describes the Quran by calling it a book whereof there is no doubt, guidance to those who are pious, righteous, and fear God. (Quran 2:2)

The Quran is core to Islam. Believing in it is a requirement. One who does not believe in the Quran, in its entirety, cannot claim to be a Muslim.

"The Messenger (Muhammad) believes in what has been sent down to him from his Lord, and (so do) the believers. Each one believes in God, His Angels, His Books, and His Messengers. (They say,) 'We make no distinction between one another of His Messengers' – and they say, 'We hear, and we obey. (We seek) Your forgiveness, our Lord, and to You is the return (of all)'" (Quran 2:285)

Islam has two primary sources, the Quran, and the authentic Traditions of Prophet Muhammad (PBUH), that explain and sometimes expand on that of the Quran.

"And We have not sent down the Book (the Quran) to you (O Muhammad, except that you may explain clearly unto them those things in which they differ, and (as) a guidance and a mercy for a folk who believe." (Quran 16:64)

The Quran was delivered to Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) by the Angel Gabriel and revealed in stages over a period of 23 years.

"And (it is) a Quran which We have divided into parts, in order that you might recite it to men at intervals. And We have revealed it by stages." (Quran 17:106)

Prophet Muhammad

(PBUH), was commanded by God to convey the Quran to all of humankind and the responsibility weighed heavily upon him. Even in his farewell address he called on the people present to bear witness that he had delivered the message.

The Quran explains the concept of God, it explains in detail what is permissible and what is forbidden, it explains the basics of good manners and morals, and gives rulings about worship. It tells stories about the Prophets and our righteous predecessors, and describes Paradise and Hell. The Quran was revealed for all of humankind.

The book in which the Quran (the words of God) are contained in is called a mushaf. The Quran is considered so unique in content and style that it cannot be translated; therefore, any translation is considered an interpretation of the meanings of the Quran.

When God sent Prophets to the various nations He often allowed them to perform miracles that were relevant to their particular time and place. In the time of Moses (AS) magic and sorcery were prevalent therefore Moses' miracles appealed to the people he was sent to guide. In the time of Muhammad (PBUH), the Arabs, although predominantly illiterate, were masters of the spoken word. Their poetry and prose were considered outstanding and a model of literary excellence.

When Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) recited the Quran – the words of God – the Arabs were moved tremendously by its sublime tone and extraordinary beauty. The Quran was Prophet Muhammad's miracle from God.

After establishing that Quran is the word of God and that it is a recitation, it is also important to understand that Quran has remained unchanged for more than 1400 years. Today when a Muslim in Egypt holds his mushaf in his hands and begins to recite you can be sure that in far away Fiji another Muslim is looking at and reciting the exact same words. There are no differences. The child in France holding his first mushaf is tentatively reciting the same words that flowed from the lips of Prophet Muhammad, may God praise him.

God assures us in Quran that He will surely protect His words. He says, "Verily, it is We Who have sent down the Quran and surely, We will guard it (from corruption)." (Quran 15:9) This means that God will guard against anything false being added or any part of it being taken away. It is protected from tampering and if anyone attempts to distort the meanings of Quran, God will guide someone to expose the deception. Muslims believe that the previous revelations from God, including the Torah and the Gospels of Jesus were either lost in antiquity, or changed and distorted, so it is a source of comfort to them knowing that God's words – the Quran – are now well guarded.

God sent down the Quran, from above the heavens, to the Angel Gabriel in the glorious month of Ramadhan. The story of how this recitation was revealed and how Quran came to be available worldwide, with an interpretation of the meanings translated into over 100 languages will be covered in part 2.
